Students actively participate in the role play

Roles included a female executive facing workplace discrimination, a male executive unaware of gender biases, a human resources manager responsible for promoting diversity. Students interacted with each other in their assigned roles, simulating real-life workplace scenarios. They navigate situations such as gender pay gaps, glass ceilings, biased hiring practices, and workplace harassment.

After the role play, there was a debriefing session where students reflect on their experiences, emotions, and insights gained from the exercise. Facilitator guided discussions on the complexities of gender dynamics in the workplace and strategies for promoting women's rights and empowerment. It was an interactive session and students enthusiastically participated in the role play.
