Report - Play on 'Women Tolerance- Sakshi'

Title of Activity*

Play on 'Women Tolerance- Sakshi'

Values

Awareness of the society on Women's Safety

Learning Outcomes

- Increased awareness: Our play raised awareness among the audience about the different forms of violence against women, such as domestic violence, sexual harassment, and gender-based discrimination.
- Knowledge of rights: Our play educated the audience about the rights of women, including their right to live a life free from violence and discrimination. It can inform them about legal provisions and resources available to support survivors of violence.
- Empathy and perspective-taking: Performing play that portrays the experiences of women who have faced violence can help the audience develop empathy and understanding. It encourages them to consider the perspectives of survivors and recognize the importance of supporting and believing them.
- Challenging social norms and stereotypes: Our play can challenge harmful gender stereotypes and social norms that perpetuate violence against women. By showcasing alternative narratives and positive role models, it can

	safety and types of violence they are facing in today's era. How can we educate not only women but also how can we educate male members to respect the women around us. This step can help the society to understand the concern of the hour and take necessary actions. Individual efforts can contribute to women's safety and it is only need for development of our society. Women help to develop the Nation and family. We all should take the responsibility around us to provide the safe atmosphere to the women around us. Remember that preventing violence against women is an on-going effort that requires sustained commitment and collaboration. It is essential to address the underlying social, cultural, and systemic factors that contribute to gender-based violence in order to create lasting change.
