Dear Madam/Sir,
Greetings from AICTE!

We are pleased to let you know that MIT School of Architecture is an institute belonging to MIT ADT University, Pune. Currently they are offering a 5 year full time bachelors course in Architecture and a two year full time masters course in Urban and Regional Planning. They are also running another masters program titled "Master of Architecture in Traditional Indian Architectural Knowledge Systems". This is one of its only kind in India, where formal education in the field of Indian Knowledge systems in Architecture is offered. It is a two years full time program approved by the Council of Architecture, New Delhi.

They have organised a Faculty Development Program (online) on "Traditional Indian Architectural Knowledge Systems" in collaboration with National Institute of Advanced Studies in Architecture (NIASA).

National Institute of Advanced Studies in Architecture (NIASA), Pune was established in July 2005. It is the first institute of Architecture initiated jointly by the Council of Architecture (COA) and the Centre for Development Studies & Activities (CDSA). It is a national level institute of excellence that facilitates advanced research in the various fields of architecture, to teachers of architecture, professionals and individuals / students.

The awareness and research on Traditional Indian Architectural Knowledge Systems is the need of the hour and should be addressed immediately. This program is a humble attempt towards not just creating this awareness, but also to prepare a teaching culture for the next generations to come.

Kindly note, Prof. Dr. Ganti Murthy, National Coordinator of the IKS division of Ministry of Education, AICTE is one of the esteemed speakers of this program.

The program is scheduled for 5 days from 8th to 12th May 2023, from 10:30 am to 1:50 pm on ZOOM/WEBEX online platform. Attaching the poster and other registration details with this email for your referencing.
